SHINTELL IZQUIERDO - Shintell Izquierdo joined Upper Columbia Conference in September as the first female lead pastor in conference history, leading the Wapato Spanish, Granger Spanish, and Central Valley Spanish church district. Izquierdo was born into an Adventist home and is the daughter of immigrant parents. "My father is from Mexico and my mother is Tejana," she shares. "I pride myself in being a Chicana. My parents worked hard growing up and as a result, I saw their Christ-like example, and the Holy Spirit's care through them. I fell in love with Jesus at a young age. At the age of 12 I knew I wanted to be a pastor and work with Hispanic churches. My parents and brother have always been supportive and have encouraged me along the way."
